

John Brownrigg

Mediation experience

John is both an accredited Mediator and a Collaborative Lawyer and regularly applies these approaches to complex matrimonial financial disputes.

His role is to help separating and divorcing couples to reduce conflict and find positive solutions which: (a) protect family wealth (b) facilitate co-parenting through and beyond separation.

He specialises in complex financial matters particularly including pensions, trusts, businesses and foreign assets.

In the Chambers edition of 2009 John is described as "a bundle of energy, who is also pragmatic, bright and thoughtful. The 2010 edition of Chambers says "His light touch and sense of humour really put you at ease."

The Legal 500 2011 states that practice head John Brownrigg provides 'calm and consistent advice', and is 'kind and considerate'.

Professional experience

John is a Collaborative Lawyer and currently the Partner of the Family and Mediation departments at Stone King solicitors.

He has been recognised as a Leading Individual in the Chamber's Directory (A Client's Guide to the UK Legal Profession) as a result of his substantial experience as a solicitor.

This wealth of experience within the legal sector has allowed John to utilise both his expert knowledge within the family law arena and his great level of personable client contact skills when mediating.
